

Erina Hunt has taught at the University of Otago for the past 25 years. She has previous experience in journalism and international teaching in Thailand, China, Malaysia and Japan and has presented at international teaching conferences throughout Asia and Europe. While collaborative project-based learning, team-teaching and tele-collaboration are her passions, her current role is as Project Manager of Online Blended English Language Programs, engaged in teacher training, designing e-curriculum, content development and teaching by distance to a wide range of students in various Asian countries.

She is a member of Teachers Without Borders and has volunteered with this organization abroad. She is a resource writer and co-author of Partners in the Classroom: Collaborative English Language Teaching and Learning Projects (2014). In 2004 she was the co-recipient of the Education NZ International Educational Teaching Excellence Award.
